

The message of President Grant contains few points of striking interest. The President, in his easy mood and his constitutional apathy, is disposed to think that we are getting on in a national way rather pleasantly than otherwise. As soon as the whole country shall show forth a disposition to pay the public debt, and to let every man vote as he may, then—according to the President—all will be well, and the country may go on its way rejoicing. We regret that we cannot share in the President's rose-colored views of the present and future of this country. It may be well for those who are up, to think as the President thinks, but those who are down, desire a change. We do not concur with the President in his views as to the satisfactory condition of the country. One portion, at least, of it, could be greatly improved. Fraud, corruption and this rule prevail in many sections of the South, and we hold that everywhere a reform is greatly needed as to the way in which the public affairs are managed, and the military is encroaching upon the civil departments of the Government. We hold that the situation might be greatly changed for the better.

OUR TERRITORIAL AREA.—The area of the organized territories of the United States, including Alaska, is greater than that of all the States which have been admitted into the Union. There are nearly 1,000,000,000 acres of land in these territories, and not over 50,000 white inhabitants. In natural resources, this territorial domain is richer than the area included in the States. The latter contain only 40,000,000 settlers, and even these would hardly be near enough for neighborhood purposes. Railroads will open up the country and bring population. What a magnificent country to carve into homesteads for 40,000,000 landless people!

THE NINTH CENSUS.—Though the results of the census of 1870 are not fully collected, enough has been ascertained to establish that the population of the United States is about 39,000,000. The New York Post estimates that the principal change in the proportionate political power of the country will be the transfer of nearly one-third of that now held by New England to the States bordering on the Mississippi valley. The Southern States are saved from the loss of political power by the act of emancipation.

COLORADO RADICALS REBUKED.—The negroes have nominated one of their own color as candidate for a vacant Senatorship in Pennsylvania; whereupon the Philadelphia Press reminds the colored people that the Republican party have "again and again risked much for the colored man, and often the risk has culminated in loss." It adds: "There is no justice now in asking that the Republican party should in any case assume any special risk, by any nomination turning on the question of color—a question now happily sunken and out of sight."

It gently hints that this colored candidate should get out of the way, that his running will jeopardize the election, and that "a defeat of the Republicans in the special election, through any mistaken action of the colored voters, would go far towards rendering it impossible to elect colored men to official positions hereafter."

The "Am I not a man and brother?" theory receives a severe blow from the hands of Dr. Bird, an eminent English physician, now resident in Italy, who has been making a series of experiments upon the blood of various races. He affirms, as the result of his investigations, a marked difference in its condition; the blood of the Bengalese containing fewer red corpuscles than the European, and that of the negro still less. He argues from this, different grades in physical organization, and proves the Caucasian to be altogether a higher and entirely different type of mankind from the inhabitants of African jungles.

REDUCTION OF THE ARMY.—The Washington Patriot says: "One of the first duties of the Democrats, after the meeting of Congress, should be to demand an immediate reduction of the army. If national troops are only to serve as a political police, and to be transported from place to place at the people's expense to promote the behests of party, then the time has come when the army should be cut down to the actual wants of proper military service, or be disbanded. This is the day and the hour to strike down usurpation, before it becomes formidable by habit and dangerous by abuse."

A letter from Paris, by balloon, announces that Oscar and Edmund LaFayette—the grand-sons of the General, have re-entered the French military service. Both were educated for the army, but resigned in 1848, when they began to take an active part in politics. Another grand-son of LaFayette, Monsieur Jules Lasterie, and his son, Louis Lasterie, have entered the Garde Mobile, and are among the defenders of Paris.

The hour for the special order—which was the election of United States Senators for the term of six years, commencing March 4, 1871—having arrived, the Chair announced that nominations were in order.

Mr. Smith nominated F. L. Cardozo; Mr. Thompson nominated T. J. Robertson; Mr. Thomas nominated M. R. Delaney; Mr. Bryan nominated F. J. Moses, Sr.; Mr. Allen nominated Gen. M. C. Butler.

Mr. Whipper seconded the nomination of F. J. Moses, and said that influences, too powerful for him to cope with, had been brought to bear in this election, and had rendered him hopeless of success, and he therefore declined being a candidate for Senator.

There were two ballots, but no candidate received the number of votes requisite for an election. The following was the result of the second ballot: T. J. Robertson received 40; F. J. Moses received 34; F. L. Cardozo received 22; M. C. Butler received 22; M. R. Delaney received 4; D. H. Chamberlain received 1; necessary to a choice 62.

The House, at 1.15 P. M., took a recess until to-morrow, at 11 A. M.

A GOOD MAN HAS FALLEN.—We were very much pained to hear of the sudden death of Rev. Gregory F. Duggan, who died last night, of heart disease. As pastor of the Catholic Church in this city for many years, he exercised a fatherly and beneficial influence over his congregation, and by his forbearance and Christian charity, won the esteem and confidence of the whole community, who will be deeply mourned to hear of his untimely demise. Educated and ordained for the Priesthood under the distinguished Bishop England, of South Carolina, Father Duggan followed in the footsteps of his illustrious preceptor.—Augusta Chronicle.

THE NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.—It appears the board of canvassers in New York city have decided that Carey, Democrat, instead of Twombly, Republican, is elected to the Legislature. This decision gives the Democrats two majorities in the House of Assembly.

The contract for building the Air Line Railroad from Trenton, N. J., to Washington has been awarded to Mr. Rand, of Philadelphia, formerly chief engineer of the Reading Railroad Company. There were 104 bids for the work.

The negroes of St. Domingo, having once exterminated the whites, are now directing their attention toward exterminating the mulattoes—a conspiracy aiming at a wholesale massacre of the colored population having just been discovered by President Saget. It would seem that the principle of "no distinction in regard to race or color" does not find much favor in the eyes of these new citizens Gen. Grant contemplates adding to the Republic.

On Saturday evening last, about five miles beyond Milledgeville, on the Macon and Augusta Railroad, the engine of the construction train from Macon to Milledgeville ran off the track, throwing Mr. Thomas Gibson from the top of the last car of the train. He fell across the track, breaking his back, which caused instant death.

OUR BOOK TABLE.—Messrs. Duffie & Chapman have also furnished us with copies of the two works referred to in yesterday's PHENIX—"Which is the Heroine?" and "Vivian Romance." We are also indebted to these gentlemen for a copy of No. 350 of "Harper's Library of Select Novels"—"In Duty Bound," by the author of "Mark Warren," etc. It is illustrated with numerous wood cuts, and from a hasty glance, we should pronounce it worthy of perusal. We shall give it a more extended notice hereafter.

Merry's Museum is gay with the bright color gracing the covers of the December number. Looking inside, liveliness and beauty of other kinds greet the eye, with illustrations, pleasant stories, poetry, declamations, puzzles, and whatever else continues to make this "Oldest Juvenile Magazine in America" still as popular as ever. The mantle of Peter Parley, enlarged and with new decorations, is worn jauntily as in former years, with modern improvements. Terms, $1.50 a year. Specimen free. Horace B. The Revolution says: "A woman is as good as a man." Well, if you can't say anything better about a woman than that, you better dry up. She is a confounded sight better than a man to sew on buttons, and all those things that a man isn't sufficiently inspired to perform.

It will be seen that the balloting on yesterday for United States Senator was indecisive. We are gratified to observe the vote given for General M. C. Butler. In him, the State of South Carolina would be worthily represented in the United States Senate. Just such a person we had in view, when we gave our ideas as to the man for the place and the man for the times. They who voted for General Butler did well.
